

One of the many good things about America is that it is not homogenized, and one size does not fit all. Media consolidation makes a mockery and a sham of regional differences which reflect the character of our country, and is a dangerous trend in terms of citizenship. We are all the poorer for it.